Sustainable palm oil policy
Approved January 19, 2015

Palm oil is used in a wide range of food products including bakery products. As a producer of compound bakery ingredients Zeelandia acknowledges that palm oil in many applications has unrivalled functional properties whilst massive production of palm oil has led to deforestation, placing livelihoods of humans and habitats of forest animals under threat.

Zeelandia is committed to use sustainable palm oil. The Zeelandia group uses several thousands of tonnes of palm oil per year bought as refined palm oil and as an ingredient in a wide range of compound raw materials.

Zeelandia has decided to adopt a purchasing policy that focuses on the transfer to a traceable certified palm oil for the coming years for as many raw materials as possible as part of our strategy.

To support sustainable palm oil production “the Koninklijke Zeelandia Group” became a RSPO member in 2011. To date, the production locations Zeelandia H.J. Doeleman bv (The Netherlands), Jung Zeelandia GmbH (Germany), Zeelandia AB (Sweden) and UAB Zeelandia (Lithuania) are RSPO certified.

Zierikzee, 19 January 2015

Dr. Ir. M.V. Bruschke
R&D Director